Industrial Relations: where to now?

Family Hotel

15 Parke St.

Katoomba

Saturday, 17th May 2008, 3.00 pm

Industrial Relations in the Howard government guise of AWAs and WorkChoices played a critical part in the election of the Rudd Labor government and saw a massive change in our political climate.

Sharan Burrow

Doug Cameron

Our two speakers will present their views about the future of Industrial Relations Laws and what that could mean for workers and unions in the new political climate following the demise of John Howard and eleven years of anti-union policy at a Federal level.

Speakers:

Sharan Burrow, President - Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU)

Doug Cameron, former National Secretary - AMWU, Senator Elect for NSW

Book launch: The Songs of Henry Lawson compiled by Chris Kempster, Second enlarged Edition
